SETTING UP RAG BABIES

THE administration is preparing for a grand sham battle in which the nation will be invited to witness another contest in calligraphy taken from the ready letter writer. New York is indignant about the British boycott and, the wires say, the president is "much concerned" over the dilemma in which the exporters of munitions of war have found themselves. It is to worry about the affairs of these gentlemen who victimized the investing public early in the war with promotions that caught the fancy of the sub-basement crowd and bargain sale buyers and, now that Great Britain is able to take care of itself, the American producer is willing to accept any old plan that will let him down easy. Just to save his face it is well to raise an outcry against the perfidy of trading with the enemy, but the fact is that United States precedent establishes the practice as perfectly legitimate. In fact it appears on investigation that the United States is the progenitor of the movement, since it was first brought into service during the civil war, when the screws were applied to everybody who had anything to do with the Confederacy. The federal government did not stop short of confiscation and the enforcement of the order was so drastic that the embargo was absolute. Should the Wilson administration think of going through the farce of retaliation it might be well to pause and inquire what can be gained by such a policy. The United States is seeking a market for its raw products and to establish an embargo against exports would be to depreciate the value of the holdings of every farmer in the land. Five cent cotton and fifty cent wheat would be the natural outcome. As campaign material the roorback will not appeal to the masses, who are beginning to see through the flimsy pretenses the administration is building up to knock over.

COST OF COUNTY ADMINISTRATION

THIS is a campaign year and therefore citizens are prone to disbelieve statements appearing from time to time criticizing official incumbents. General allegations seldom carry weight. Facts are what the people want, but there is no paucity of evidence in the concrete so far as Nye county is concerned. According to statements filed with the Nevada Tax commission the cost of administering the affairs of the sixteen counties of the state for 1916 will reach the enormous figure of $2,320,000.00, which is doing pretty well for a population of 100,000, which is at the rate of $20 per capita. Nye county ranks as one of the most expensive administrations. The estimate of this county filed with the state board asked for $202,000 to be levied on taxpayers, but before the ink was dry on the roll, a supplementary list was filed showing special requirements not included in the original budget of $60,580.25, or a total cost of $262,580.25 for conducting the affairs of this county for one year. The cost of administration for the previous year was $127,000 and for 1914, $132,000. The increase in the single year of 1916 was over 100 per cent, which cannot be ascribed to anything but incompetency and mismanagement, such as installing a complete high pressure water service and taxing it up against the town instead of extending it over a period of years. There is not the slightest palliating circumstance for such a reign of extravagance.

BONANZA'S TELEGRAPH SERVICE

THE Associated Press service of the Bonanza is not excelled by any of the metropolitan newspapers. They may print more in quantity, but they do not print any more exclusive events than what appear in the columns of this paper. The Associated Press is the only reliable service covering the entire world that carries the news to the remotest subscribers as fast as the wires can convey the intelligence. Not a second is lost in transmission and the Bonanza gets the benefit of this constant vigilance. An apt illustration was afforded readers last Saturday, when the dynamite outrage was perpetrated in San Francisco. The bomb was timed to explode shortly after 2 o'clock. The effect was to throw the people of the Bay City into a convulsion that resembled the result of the Haymarket explosions in Chicago. Business was dislocated for the time, but the news gathering agency was as calm and placid as a veteran facing shell fire in the trenches. The Associated Press was first to flash the news and pave the way for the story that was to follow. Inside of an hour the event had been covered; reporters had ascertained the full extent of loss of life; hospitals had been checked up and the number of wounded placed on record; police authorities had been consulted with reference to the probable author of the plot and, while all these facts were rolling into the main office of the Associated Press, writers were engaged assembling the matter and operators were busy dispatching the news line by line as it was tossed off from typewriters or dictated verbally to telegraph operators by reporters fresh from the scene. The result was that the entire story appeared in the regular edition of the Bonanza that was distributed to every subscriber less than two hours after the explosion occurred. This is a record breaking event, but it is one that the Associated Press does not enlarge upon, as it is the product of a perfect machine that is always on the alert day and night for the benefit of its subscribers.

PATENT LEATHER HATS ADOPTED IN VIENNA

VIENNA, July 26.—Rainy weather that has prevailed for weeks without letup has been responsible for the introduction of patent leather hats, which are now in great vogue among the women of Vienna. The patent leather style has also extended to include belts, cuffs, collars and other parts of the costume.

PREPAREDNESS

Here's proof of the value of being prepared

We are for National preparedness.

We have proved the value to any organization, whether it be government or manufacturer, of being prepared for the unexpected.

It has been an established rule of this institution to lay in our supplies of materials far in advance of their actual need.

We've done this with the Saazer Hops which we use exclusively in Budweiser, Michelob, Muenchener and our new soft drink Bevo—always a two-year advance supply. Preparedness.

During the summer of 1914, one of our officials, while on his annual hop buying trip abroad, selected and purchased 775,000 lbs. (1550 bales) of the choicest Saazer Hops—and had them shipped to this country before the embargo was rigidly enforced in March, 1915—preparedness. Add this to the large stock on hand, and you will see how secure preparedness has made our position.

Our supply is sufficient to last at least until the closing days of 1916. Preparedness pays.
